ARRAYS

Array is a special type of variable that can contain multiple values or sets of data. Arrays are commonly used to store a list of related data such as the marks of 50 students or the letters of the alphabet. Instead of creating 50 individual variables to store student